DO ADVERTISEMENTS PAY?

Not if the advertiser misrepresents the grade and quality of his wares; not if he indulges in trade tricks unworthy of the conduct of modern business houses! Advertisements pay and pay well if the purchasers are protected in the buying of honest goods at honest prices. Advertisements that are earnest, truthful and sincere, backed up, of course, by the goods themselves—the goods advertised, are worth your reading and your belief. You are, or should be, interested in the new styles of furniture that we are constantly bringing into this city, that we are equally persistent in advertising. If you will not read what we say of our goods; if you do not post yourself on the new things you are quite likely to get "back numbers" in furniture in your homes, much to your chagrin and frequently to the undisguised amazement of not meriting in your friends. Let us emphasize this fact. The markets are badly demoralized; we frequently get hold of and offer in this column furniture of the best kind at prices that goods of the character and grade can hardly be manufactured for. We, the public, and ourselves are mutually interested in the story of our store news.

NEXT TUESDAY ONLY.
NEXT TUESDAY ONLY.

Bring six dollars with you to our store and see what nice center tables you can take home with you, tables we have sold for $9, $10, $12 and $13. You have heard of people who would not buy $20 gold pieces for $13. You have heard of people who would not buy center tables at just such comparative values. Let us suggest that no other day in the week will do. Tuesday only.

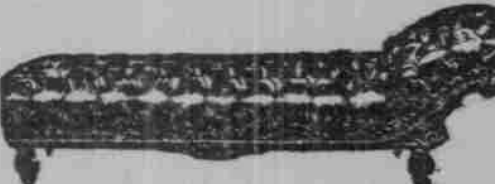

BABY BUGGIES.

These perfect summer days of unclouded skies, of health-laden breezes, are the days when the ownership of a baby carriage gives the child a chance to grow strong and healthy. This suggests our line of prices on carriages:

- At $7 Wood Body, Cretonne Cushions.
- At $9 Embroidered Cloth Silk Parson.
- At $10 Wood Body, Plush Slumber Roll, Mattie Parson, Novelty Running Gear.
- At $20 Handsome, Fine Finished Carriages. Very nice carriages.

LEATHER SEATED ROCKERS.

In maroon, tan and olive colors, plentifully suggestive of solid comfort and in our stock. They are in plain or fanciful leathers, with or without spring seats, mostly framed in antique oak. You can buy them for $4, $5, $6 and intervening prices up to the full Turkish rocker at $40.

THE NEW COUCHES.

Those just in, upholstered in the stylish corduroys, plain, speckled or patterned are "all the rage." The Wilton Rugs, though distanced in popular favor by the new Corduroys, still maintain their hold, and deservedly so, on those who are fond of bright colors and pretty designs worked in on the rug. These tufted leather lounges we are selling at $35, $40 and $75, are meeting with a warm welcome from those who wish a combination of good style and desirability in the same article. We have leather lounges for $15.

CHILDREN'S BEDS.

Exceedingly pretty affairs in wood, enameled, white, with brass ornaments, in maple or oak; plain beds or folding beds or in enameled iron beds, dainty affairs of large, heavy ones. Better come soon before assortment gets broken. You haven't seen beds like these.

MAJ. MORRILL SPEAKS.

He Opens His Campaign at Kansas City, Kan.

TALKS ON THE MONEY QUESTION.

We Don't Want More Money, He Says, But What We Have Should Be Good.

Major Morrill, the Republican candidate for governor of Kansas, opened his campaign Saturday night at Kansas City, Kansas. Thousands of people gathered at the Tabernacle. Major Morrill's speech was short. He said:

"To use the language of Mr. Cleveland, it is a condition and not a theory that now confronts us in this country. A condition in which every citizen has a deep interest. Two years since, the fires were burning brightly in every forge in the country and the mills and shops of the land were resounding with the hum of industry. Today the scene is very different. The fires have been drawn and the mills and shops of the land are closing or are closed. Men are out of employment and business is in the most dispirited and deplorable state."

"What has brought all this about? Surely it was not brought about by any single act of legislation. The causes are remote and of long duration. Years ago when England overflowed with her millions, there were vast sums of wealth sent to South America for investment, and there were tremendous investments made in these new countries. Collapse followed, and with it came a lack of confidence, and the money that had been sent here for investment was withdrawn. Still there was no need of a panic in this country. The whole affair was the result of a senseless scare that could have been averted had the president of the country acted with firmness and decision at the proper time. It was like allowing a fire to spread in a precious building. A small amount of water would have easily quenched it at the proper time, but carelessness and indecision entailed untold damage to the whole party."

"President Cleveland, when he saw the drift of matters and the threatened danger, had had the courage and wisdom to have issued a proclamation stating that there would be no radical changes in the existing tariff laws, there would have been no panic in this country. Had he possessed the courage and wisdom to have come out boldly and declared that he would use all of the methods at his hand to maintain the credit of the country at home and abroad, there would have been no lack of confidence and no panic. Business would have been proceeded with as usual."

"With a threatened violent change in the existing tariff laws it was not to be wondered at that the finances of the country were affected. Business men were not going to be caught. The manufacturer had to stop or curtail on account of changes that might affect his trade. Merchants were forced to lessen their stock to be ready for the changes that might come and as the matter became contagious it grew to ruinous results. And all this resulted from the lack of courage and wisdom on the part of the president."

"The question that was interesting everyone now, said the speaker, was how are we to restore confidence once more and get the business of the country in proper shape again. It cannot be done in a day or two, nor can it be done by any single piece of legislation. We must all go to work and work in harmony to get confidence again restored. It is the duty of every true American to stand up for the country, and the man who went about with a tale of woe, telling evil of the land, was a public enemy."

"We must not so that the people know we mean what we say. Capital cannot be blamed for securing its own protection. No denunciation will change it from its course if evil is threatened. It is nothing will drive it out of its course if it is assured protection. There is just as much money in the country as ever. It is hoarded in the banks for the reason that the scare is not all over. In times like these no one uses money, while in prosperous times there is a constant demand for money from all directions. The money is in the natural channels if it only had an opportunity of getting out."

"It will do no good to issue more money. I would be like injecting more blood in the system of a man suffering from congestion of the heart. There would be simply more blood to gather around the congested parts."

"One thing we do want is good money—money in which we feel a confidence, and money that calls out new enterprises and starts up new industries. I want the people to have good money. Every dollar issued by the United States ought to be as good as any other dollar made, no matter whether it is gold or silver."

"The parity between the two metals ought to be preserved, and if necessary every ounce of the silver mined here ought to be coined and put in circulation. But in all this we should do nothing that would make one dollar less than any other dollar."

"I believe our Populist friends are breeding a revolution and that the contest this fall in this state is between law and order on the one side and socialism and anarchy on the other. I believe that the vicious teachings of the Populist party for the last two years have resulted in more damage to the state than all of the other ailments and blights that have afflicted the state for the past forty years. The drought and the grasshoppers did less damage to the country."

"The reputation of the state abroad had become so bad that men were ashamed of the present place occupied by the state, and men who fought to make Kansas what she ought to be were compelled to hang their heads in shame as they heard the disgrace of the state told at home and abroad. [Applause.]

"The mission of the Republican party was to redeem the state. The actions of the platform of the Populist will result in the farther depreciation of values. They promised the people reform two years ago, and in redeeming that promise had so managed the public institutions that, with a single exception, there had been a scandal and a disgrace connected with each one. Men of known bad character had been appointed to responsible positions and had disgraced them. Men who had left other states for the state's good were elevated and then betrayed their trusts. [Applause.]

"I am a Republican because I am an American. [Cheers.] I believe the United States is the best country on earth. [Loud applause.] If I had the power I would protect the industries of the country from all encroachments of whatever nature."

I would give the benefit of the markets here to the American workman, I believe the men who made this state what she has been, and can be again, will find they are in line with this policy at the election, and that Kansas, the best state in the union, will be redeemed in November. [Much applause.]

WON'T ENDORSE CLARK.

The Democrats Will Probably Name a Straight Democrat.

It now looks as if there would be a straight Democrat in the field for associate justice of the state supreme court. When Clark was nominated it was thought the Democrats would fall into line and give him their endorsement but four candidates for the Democratic nomination have already been mentioned. They are Joseph G. Lowe, the Washington county stalwart, Judge James Humphrey of Junction City, J. H. Atwood of Leavenworth, and Chas. Bucher of Newton.

It is thought that when such well known Democrats ask the nomination the convention will not dare to endorse Clark, although there is a sentiment favorable to his nomination.

Another thing that militates against Clark is that in a speech before the Populist convention accepting his nomination, he declared his endorsement of the Populist platform and that although he had been opposed to woman suffrage, he would now vote and work for it.

Some of "General" Bennett's Wealers Depart from Kansas City via the Mo.

"General" Bennett, who was given $102 by the Populist convention for his commonwealthers, at Kansas City, has run away with the money; at least he has not been seen since. Saturday evening one company of the men who have been camped in the East bottoms for two weeks, set sail on a raft down the Missouri. They numbered twenty-seven. As fast as rafts can be built the rest of the troops will follow.

The raft is a rude affair, built of drift. The frame is composed of several telegraph poles, which "floated" down the river from somewhere" quite handily. These were spiked together with trenails. Over this frame was built another of joists, logs, anything and everything that came up on the shore, and upon all was a rude floor. The American flag planted in the center of the strange craft gave it a jaunty appearance.

"HOOKEY" JIM CRAZY.

Dr. McClintock Regards Him as a Dangerous Character.

Dr. J. C. McClintock says that he thinks that "Hookey" Jim Fuston should be put in an insane asylum. He is an epileptic, and is liable to go dangerously mad at any time, says Dr. McClintock. Some time ago Dr. McClintock endeavored to have "Hookey" Jim disarmed on account of his disease. If this desperate character were taken before the probate judge he could be sent to the state insane asylum on the testimony of any of the Topeka doctors.

Arrested at the Buckeye House.

In the police court today Mike Ross, a man 25 years old who hangs around the Buckeye house a great deal, was charged with having maintained at various times improper relations with May Brooks. The Brooks woman was there also, on the same charge, and the police say all kinds of things about both of them, especially the woman. They were arrested on a complaint of Mrs. Brooks' husband who works in a brick-yard. Their cases were turned over to the state.

POPULISTS WILL WAIT.

Their Policy of Seeing What the Other Fellows Are Going to Do.

The Populist congressional committee of the Second district, with an eye to business, has issued a circular announcing the postponement of their congressional convention until July 12.

The committee some time ago called their nominating convention for June 22 at Paola, but since the Republican convention adjourned without making a nomination, they have decided to wait until the Republicans have another opportunity to name their candidate.

The adjourned Republican convention will be held at Lawrence July 10, and two days later the Populists will meet at Paola. There will be ninety-five delegates in the Populist convention, as follows: Allen 8; Anderson 9; Bourbon 12; Douglas 9; Franklin 11; Johnson 10; Linn 10; Miami 12; Wyandotte 14.

Col. H. L. Moore, of Lawrence, the nominee of two years ago, Judge S. S. King of Kansas City, and State Senator W. P. Dillard, of Bourbon county, are talked of as likely candidates.

THEY LOUDLY YELLED

Until the Police Arrested Them for Making a Disturbance.

Parkdale was disturbed early this morning by a racket that sounded like the enthusiasm of a political convention.

The noise was made by four young men on horse back, Jack Morrison, Jack McGiven, Joe Butcher and Lee Costello. They have been arrested for being drunk and disorderly.

They jumped on their horses and rode all over town yelling and doing the cowboy act. It took three policemen to corral them on the viaduct.

Costello was fined $5 and the rest had their cases continued in the police court today.

POLICE PROTECTION

Will Be Given to the Western Part of Town.

The board of police commissioners met Saturday night and decided to furnish better police protection to that portion of Topeka west of Kansas avenue. To this end two officers will patrol the district after dark, one south of Eighth street and the other north of it. In the day time a mounted policeman will cover the whole territory.

Officer Charles Summers has a horse so he will probably be selected for this beat.

A CRAZY STREAK.

In the Family of the Murderer of Charles Hamble.

The Atchison Globe says in relation to the killing of Charles Hamble of Holton:

"A Holton man in town today says that there has been talk about Hamble and the Osborn girl ever since she entered his office a year ago, but that there was talk about the girl and another man before that time. This man since married. The girl is in no trouble. Her father goes on a drunk occasionally, and it is supposed he heard about the talk, got drunk, loaded a shot gun, and killed Hamble. Osborn had a half-witted son, who died not long ago. There is a crazy streak in the family."

TOURGEE WON'T TAKE IT.

Refuses a Congressional Nomination Because of the Republican Party's Faults.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Judge Albion W. Tourgee, who has been a leading candidate for the Republican nomination in the 34th congressional district in this state has withdrawn from the fight.

He has written an open letter addressed to the Republicans of New York state in which he presents in details, the reason for this action. He says that the Republican party in this state, seems to be drifting away from its old principles of "free speech, free soil, free men."

Judge Tourgee said in conclusion: "I have an abiding faith in the American people and the voters of the Republican party. I have no more doubt of their inclination and ability than I have of their ultimate determination to overthrow the oppression and establish justice for all."

"I recognize the fact, however, that such determination must in both cases result from individual conviction of the needs and efficiency of individual action. Such conviction can only arise from such discussion and illustration as shall bring the matter home to the attention of every voter."
